Unveiling the Tajo Lamp Series by BOLIA

Designed by Asger Risborg Jakobsen

Danish designer Asger Risborg Jakobsen introduces Tajo, a poetic new series of lamps created for BOLIA's Spring–Summer 2025 collection. Offered as both table lamps and pendants, the pieces bathe interiors in a gentle, smoothing glow - equally suited to private homes and refined professional settings.

Inspired by nature's endless cycles and shifting seasons, Tajo captures the quiet grace of continuous movement. The shade's flowing curves and the diffused light they cast create a calm, enveloping atmosphere.

Tajo Table Lamp

The table lamp rests on a sand-hued travertine base, anchoring the piece in a serene, mineral-inspired aesthetic. Its shade - crafted from a refined linen blend - adds soft texture. With closed tops that reflect light inward, the design ensures an ambient, harmonious glow.

Tajo Pendant Series

Available in three sizes, the Tajo pendants encourage layered, sculptural arrangements. In contrast, the table lamps offer a quiet, focused halo - ideal for desks, sideboards, or bedside tables.

A reflection of nature

Known for exploring both the simplicity and complexity of the natural world, Jakobsen designs with four guiding principles: functionality, beauty, character, and craftsmanship. With Tajo, he continues his pursuit of essential, enduring design - one that honours the world's quiet strength and natural rhythm.
